Hi, I'm Hope. I'm passionate about telling human stories and amplifying voices through creative mediums such as live events, workshops, podcasts and written communications. Driven by a desire to inspire positive change and share narratives, I contribute to the success of purpose-led projects that aim to make a difference in people's lives. I've worked in the non-profit sector for the last five years, focusing on events, arts and culture, as well as international development. This area of impactful work contributes to my passion for creating meaningful experiences that foster personal expression, learning, and community engagement & empowerment on a global scale.
